STATE NEWS

STOCKMEN WILL INCREASE REWARD FOR CATTLE RUSTLERS

Steps looking to the relief from cattle "rustling" and conditions which demand drastic range regulation were taken at the meeting of members of the Southern Nevada Cattle Owners' Association at Goldfield last week by the adoption of resolutions covering these important subjects, according to Vernon Metcalf, secretary of the Nevada Live Stock Association upon his return from the convention, says the Gazette.

The resolution dealing with cattle stealing calls upon the State authorities for full co-operation in enforcing the present laws and to effect such changes in legislation as are necessary to bring adequate relief.

The cattle rustling situation, as revealed by individual stock men at the meeting, is actually alarming. There developed a sentiment for a new branding law providing for a central depot for the maintaining of branding records and a desire was voiced for strict laws covering the branding of stock and hides leaving the state; also the licensing of butchers and a record of their sales preserved. The suggestion that the maximum reward of $500 for the arrest and prosecution of cattle thieves, as fixed by law, be increased to $1,000, also met with approval.

Complaining of the vast influx of sheep into this state from outside territory, which is driving worse each year and monopolizing the range, the association passed a resolution calling upon the United States government for protection on the public domain. It was pointed out that if the influx of sheep is not checked cattle men must dispose of their herds and buy sheep so that they can "fight sheep with sheep," or go out of business altogether.

ARRASCADA LOSES IN THE SUPREME COURT

Another chapter in the now famous Arrascada whiskey case was written Tuesday morning when a telegram was received stating the supreme court of Nevada had handed down a decision dismissing the petition for a writ of habeas corpus for the release of Y. Arrascada of Golconda. The decision, also quashed an alternative writ of prohibition to prevent destruction of 191 cases of whiskey taken when Arrascada was arrested last year for violation of the state prohibition law. Arrascada is remanded to the custody of Sheriff Springer and it is thought he will give himself up before the official decision, now in the mail from Carson City, reaches here, says the Winnemucca Silver State.

The original order of Judge Callahan, which will be in force upon arrival of the papers from Carson, is that Sheriff Springer and Constable Brady of Golconda shall destroy the whiskey "at once." This, however, will probably not be immediately accomplished, as attorneys for Arrascada said they will apply for a rehearing of the case before the supreme court. It is thought this will delay matters at least fifteen days longer and more than that if the rehearing is granted.

Arrascada's sentence, in addition to losing the 191 cases of whiskey, is nine months in jail and a fine of $750. The value of the booze at prevailing prices is approximately $68,760.00, figured at $30 a bottle.

REBER INSISTS UPON TAX AGAINST ARRASCADA'S BOOZE

Frank Reber, deputy internal revenue collector, returned from Reno Tuesday morning. He says the new revenue office is ready for business now and all revenue business will be conducted hereafter at Reno instead of San Francisco. Frank has lots of business on hand. He's going north in a day or two to pick up another mine that will be a wonder of the world. To take up his spare time he called on Sheriff Springer this afternoon and told him he would be around in a few days to go over and inventory the Arrascada whiskey kept at the county jail for the purpose of levying the government tax against the booze before it is destroyed. The sheriff says Reber will "go some" if he gets to play with that booze.—Silver State.

ONLY THREE PUBLIC LIBRARIES

Only 19.2 per cent of the population of Nevada has access to free public libraries, leaving more than 66,000 persons not provided with free library service, according to the estimate of the United States bureau of education.

AERODROMES MAY HAVE HOSPITALS SOON

Laboratories for Treatment of Those Afflicted May Be Placed in Each One of Them.

Flying laboratories, aerodromes equipped with hospitals, the medical treatment of benighted natives who dwell on a continent-long aerial route, may be next "flights" forward—or upward—of scientific aviation. The London correspondent of the Journal of the American association writes:

"The Cairo to Cape airplane flight across the whole of Africa from north to south, in which Dr. Chalmers Mitchell, the well-known zoologist, is carried for purpose of scientific observation, has led Sir Ronald Ross to suggest in the Times that the time has come when it is feasible to consider the possibility of using airplanes for the medical exploration of Africa and other dark countries. He cannot say how far the suggestion would be practicable especially in countries largely covered with bush and not at present possessing cleared landing places. But such an exploration would be of great use."

"He suggests that each exploring plane should carry not only a pathologist and a small portable laboratory, but also one or more clinicians, for the purpose of relieving the sickness of the poor natives who otherwise might never hope for the benefits of medical science."

"Research would, of course, go hand in hand with clinical work. It would be necessary ultimately to establish base hospitals and laboratories at the main aerodromes along the route."

FISH PICK QUEER HOME

Found in Tender of Railroad Locomotive by Fireman.

E. Sturges, boilermaker foreman at the Missouri Pacific round house at Osawatimie, Kan., now believes "there's nothing new under the sun."

Sturges was convinced of this the other day when he found a school of minnows in the tender of an engine brought into the shop for repairs.

The "small fry" are believed to have been in the tender several weeks. How they got there is a mystery.

Suspect Epileptics of Starting Fire.

The death of patients when the male ward of the Ohio State hospital for epileptics, at Gallipolis, was burned has led to the arrest of six patients suspected of setting fire to the building.

THE FISHING PLACE.

Yeast—Where are you going on your vacation, old man?
Crimsonbeak—I'm going fishing in a little lake up in Maine.
"Why don't you go somewhere?"
"What do you mean by somewhere?"
"You're wasting your time fishing in a little lake. Statisticians tell us that Lake Erie produces more fish to the square mile than any other body of water in the world."

Cheerful Giver.

"Brain work is not always well compensated."
"Brain workers," replied Farmer Cornstossel, "is mostly too generous. Every summer boarder we had was willing to give me advice by the hour on how to run the farm, and never charge me a cent."

Realism.

The Star—The author of this play is a stupid stickler for realism.
The Manager—I have noticed it.
The Star—Why he objects to my wearing diamond rings in the scene where I pawn my hat to buy food for the children.—T.H. Bits.

Place Nearly All Right.

Mistress (nervously)—I do hope the place will suit you.
New Maid—Well, the house is not bad, and I rather like the looks of the policeman on the beat, but if I stay here you'll kindly take them horrible pictures down.—London T.H. Bits.

Stingy!

"By the way, George, what shall we get Mabel for a wedding present? She gave us that plush upholstered chair that's in the attic, you know."
"I don't think we'd better send her anything, dear. Why not let bygones be bygones?"—Life.

Then He Got the Worst of It.

Flatbush—So you had an argument with your neighbor?
Bensonhurst—I certainly had and a warm one at that.
"Who got the best of it?"
"Well, I did until he struck me in the eye."

Before the Happy Day.

Doris—She believes every word he tells her.
Lillian—How long have they been married?
Doris—They're not married. They're going to be.—London Answers.

The Practical Problem.

"Make hay while the sun shines," said the offhand philosopher.
"That kind of advice is easy," commented Farmer Cornstossel. "What you want to invent is some method of getting a crop in during three or four weeks of steady rain."

SUMMED UP.

"Of what does a shad consist?"
"A backbone, a wishbone, a funny bone and then some."

The Employment of Time.
What do we gain when discords lurk in such illogical array,
When people who decline to work are in no mood for rest or play?

Dryness.

"There are books in the running brooks," remarked the airy quotationist.
"Yes," mused Farmer Cornstossel; "an' a lot of 'em is like what the little old stream on my place has got to be, a mighty dry proposition."

The Early Bird.

Mr. Duck—Seems to me your voice is kinda husky this morning, Mr. Pelican.
Mr. Pelican—Well, you see, I went fishing earlier than usual and got a frog in my throat.—Cartoons.

Sympathy Would Be Wasted.
"You know, last night they got into the grocery's, broke open his safe and took $3,000."
"He should worry. He'll get that back in a few days."

Thought of a Hard-Up Man.
"As a rule a dwarf doesn't live to a great age."
"Well, what's the use in living if you've got to be short all your life?"

The Way of It.
"Are you in good odor with her father?"
"Well, as far as he is concerned, I am afraid ours would be a centless marriage."

Improves With Age.
Hewitt—There's no fool like an old fool.
Jewett—Of course not. The longer you are a fool the better fool you get to be.

Both in the Same Boat.
Beggar—Mister, I'm in trouble, and—
Pedestrian—Don't bother me. I've got a second-hand automobile, too.—Judge.

Quite So.
"Dr. Fixem is making a specialty of getting people thin."
"He must find that a fat job."

After the Exertion.
"Some officeholders are not very industrious."
"Well," explained Senator Sorghum, "after a man has been running for office he's liable to feel tired enough for a good, long rest."

Truth and Poetry.
"You should keep to the straight and narrow path."
"True," said Mr. Chuggins, with great earnestness. "The journey of life, like every other journey, seems to be at its worst in the detours."

POOR TENANTS.
Bug Landlord—Drat those Appleworms, they've skipped their rent and eaten half the house besides!

Contention.
How oft has fierce contention flared,
Then faded all inert!
Men very frequently are scared,
But very seldom hurt.

He Didn't Know.
Sentimental Mary—Oh, don't you just love to cuddle up against the good old spring and feel the gloriousness of it!
Mere man—I don't know. I've always slept on a mattress.

Highly Diverting.
Wife—I did so enjoy myself this afternoon.
Hubby—How so?
Wife—I went to the theater and cried all through the play, it was so sad.

Pluck.
"My boy," said the prospective father-in-law, "you will discover that my daughter has expensive tastes."
"I discovered that long ago, sir; but I gritted my teeth and made an engagement for the very next night."

Mean.
Friend—Is her father the kind of man who would pursue you if you eloped?
Jack Poore—No, he's the kind of man who'd move so that you couldn't find him when you came back.

A Misapprehension.
"The agent told us there was running water in every room when we signed the lease."
"Was there?"
"I should say so. Every water pipe in the place was leaking."

Guarding His Stock in Trade.
She—You haven't said a clever thing all the evening.
Literary Man (who has to make his living)—There are other authors present.—London Bightly.

Bank on Checks.
Bill—The word Czechs should be pronounced as though it were spelled "cheks."
Gill—But can I bank on that?

Paper farthings issued by merchants as vouchers for change have appeared in the suburbs of London. When you get down to brass tacks the saving of copper is important.

But after all is said and done this country is not settling down to the point where a man who pays the money will be deprived of having a say about how much he will pay.

The impoverished people who can't afford coal and have to go to Florida for the winter must have the sympathy of the arctic birds that have fallen victims to the prevailing world unrest.
